The British Cartographic Society invites you to attend

‘Cartography – Soviet Style’

by John Davies

at the

Royal Air Force Club

128 Piccadilly • London • W1J 7PY

on

Tuesday 8th November 2016  15:30 - 17:00

The Soviet military spent more than 50 years on a secret project creating maps of practically everywhere in the world during the Cold War. For the past 10 years John Davies has been investigating the Soviet maps, especially the ones of British and American cities. Together with his colleagues he has been trying to piece together how they were made and how, exactly, they were intended to be used.

This talk is open to all. Cost: £10 BCS members, £15 non-members

Pre-registration is essential via the BCS website.

This talk precedes the BCS AGM which is for BCS members only.

Please note, the dress code at the RAF Club is ‘smart casual’.

To register for this talk please visit:

www.cartography.org.uk